Dolbey releases support of SpeechMagic™ 6.1 in Fusion products

Philadelphia, PA – From the 2007 American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA) meeting, Dolbey announced the release of an upgrade to their Fusion Voice, Text and Speech systems that support the latest professional speech recognition technology available from Royal Philips Electronics, SpeechMagic™ 6.1.

Fusion, until this release, was being provided on the previous version of SpeechMagic for both front-end and back-end speech recognition. “This new version of SpeechMagic is a significant jump in technology in the speech industry. While still supporting whole hospital implementations in the same product, we now offer high scalability in speech server architecture, Citrix extensions for remote client desktops and highly accurate recognition with minimum or no speaker enrollment”, Curtis Weeks, Senior Product Engineer.

Dolbey provides the Fusion Voice, Text and Speech solutions for healthcare dictation, transcription and speech recognition. For more information, please visit www.dolbey.com or call Dolbey at 800-878-7828.
