

Dolbey announces Fusion Expert™ PACS integration

Cincinnati Ohio, Dolbey announces the integration of Fusion Expert™ speech recognition with a wide range of PACS systems. The two way integration will enable the PACS system to launch or start a new dictation within Fusion Expert as well as provide demographic information for the dictation file thus eliminating errors from manual input of accession/work order numbers. Fusion Expert communicates with the PAC/RIS to signal job completions so the PACS orders list can be updated more efficiently. This sophisticated integration will give Radiologists additional control of their Fusion system directly through the PACS application.

Some of the major PACS systems that Dolbey has integrated with include GE, Siemens, Philips, Stentor, McKesson and Amicas.

Fusion Expert™ is based on the Philips SpeechMagic™ technology and is a fully integrated component of the Dolbey Fusion suite of products including Fusion Text® transcription software, Fusion Voice® dictation and Fusion Speech® background speech recognition. Fusion Expert™ is available in many different contexts including Radiology, Pathology, Emergency Medicine and other general medical fields. Fusion Expert™ can significantly reduce report turnaround time dramatically lowering transcription costs and potentially eliminating the need for outsourced transcription.

Dolbey continues with their commitment of developing the most technologically advanced solutions to improve healthcare documentation management for today and the future.
